

Pluto

Pluto

"You are everything we need."

~It's funny how the world works sometimes; one minute you are at your peak, the next you feel as if everything was so heavy you couldn't breathe. It's funny how you want to be alone yet someone wanted you to join their world.

It's funny how you really wanted to disappear yet someone managed to make you remember that life is worth living.

A story in which a lone planet became part of one warm solar system.

Table of Contents

oo : Polar Opposites

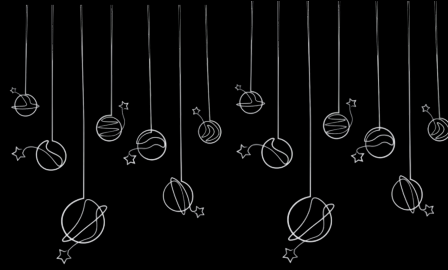

KAZAHANA YUKIMI can be described in one word - optimistic. Bringing forth a bubbly personality and an always smiling face, she made it easy blending in to what her peers thought about her. If one would associate her with faces, it would always be with a dazzling grin along with a chorus of laughter - never a dejected one. But when her birthday and a wave of melancholy came, Yukimi found herself sobbing her heart out in their empty classroom with twilight rolling in through the windows, bathing her in a golden hour glow. She thought it best to not confide the bottled up emotions with her so-called friends - until the captain of her school's volleyball team witnessed her in her most vulnerable state, entangling her into believing that even in her broken state, she will always matter.

KUROO TETSUROU never had time for romance. Girls are out of the question with all the workload from his classes and the responsibility of being a captain combined. With his schedule perfectly balanced between being a complete nerd and a captain, he rejected the girls who would dare confess to him despite knowing that his hands are full. But he knew better. It was never about him being busy that he couldn't engage in relationships - it was because of a bright smile and a sunflower attitude that made him not interested in just about anyone. However, him being fine with unrequited love changed when he saw the person he likes break in front of him. After that, an exception will be wedged in his priorities - making Kazahana Yukimi happy enough to flash that beautiful smile that managed to bewitch him in the first place.

*I think I know we've fallen in love
Shall we start?
We've waited so long for this
Time to love.*

01 : A Warm Welcome

Start :